Loosening of Regulations Applying to American Cargoes Will Depend on Assurances of Neutral Countries About War Munitions.

LONDON, January 4 (7:45 P. M.).— The British government's reply to the American note concerning contraband probably will be sent before the end of this week. An outline of the reply has been submitted to France, which is greatly interested because of the acof French ships in searching Mediterranean cargoes.

A statement probably will be issued tended scarch: shortly showing that Italy has arrived at an understanding with England and the other allies concerning contraband. satisfactory to all the countries affect-

It can be stated authoritatively that only five cargoes destined for Italy have been stopped at Gibrattar since November 15. Two of these were re-leased within three days, and the others as soon as the alleged contraband could be removed. Since December 4 intercepted by the allies.

Rubber cargoes destined for American firms and held in English ports, probably will be released soon or purchased by Great Britain, which needs much rubber for the manufacture of tires, bed blankets and boots.

Constant negotiations are in prog-ress between the allies and the neutral European countries situated near Germany looking to a tightening of the export regulations, which will prevent American shipments from reaching Germany and Austria through neighboring countries other than Italy.

A loosening of the regulations applying to American cargoes, it is said by British officials, will denote here.

British officials, will depend largely on the assurances received from neu-tral countries that they will not assist in supplying Germany, Austria and iral countries that they will not assist in supplying Germany, Austria and Turkey with munitions of war.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, other thousands have headaches every week or every month, and still others have headaches occasionally, but not at regular intervals. The best Doctor is often unable to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in most other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what will remove it, so as to give a permanent cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headgches, no matter what their nature, take Anti-kamnia Tablets, and the results will be satis factory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, loc worth, 25c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick-headache, the most miserable of all sick-nesses, loses its terrors when A-K Tablets are taken. When you feel an attack coming on, take two tablets, and in many cases, the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. Another development regarded as af-fording a solution of one point under dispute is Washington's decision to dispute is Washington's decision to certify American cargoes as to their exact contents before leaving American ports. Secretaries Bryan and Redfield and Acting Secretary Peters, of the Treasury Department, conferred to-day on the formulation of a circular to be issued to-morrow, urging cooperation between American exporters, shippers and the government in regard to the manifests of neutral ships used to carry American cargoes.

Complaints ports, wherever desired. Companies have been made that in some instances have been made that does not contain the ship's manifest does not contain all the cargo aboard, and this action of the Treasury Department is, no doubt, in response to these complaints."

Justification for detention of neutral vessels clearing from American ports is claimed by the British because con-traband has been concealed in some cotton cargoes. It also is alleged that manifests when produced have not dis-closed the whole of the cargoes. The British claim that the size of modern Tribune's photographer was in the very thick of the fighting when he took these pictures, there isn't a bayonet in the world that can carry far chough to hurt one of the combatants. In a few of the pictures, a man or two may be seen to topple over and lie still. As the pictures are shown under the name of a highly reputable newspaper, it may be taken for granted that these men were actually shot, but it would be the simplest thing imaginable to fake scenes precisely similar. True, the Belgian artillery and infantry are both shown in action, but they might as well be shooting at the boundless horizon for all the spectator knows. In short, those who witness the battle scenes shown in this series of pictures must exercise their imagination in order to picture them as the formulation of pictures and shoes in which he dressed the part, though they did add prison clothes and shoes in which he dressed the part, though they did and magination in order to picture them as the formulation of the first time in Richmond, playing it with all her winsome appeal and charm.

In short, those who witness the battle scenes shown in this series of pictures must exercise their im-agination in order to picture them as anything other than spirited field manoeuvres.

There are many views of wounded soldlers being borne in ambulances; of frightened inhabitants fleeing from burning towns; of the effects of shell fire on buildings of various kinds, and of hundreds of other interesting scenes incident to warfare. But those of us who are not above frequenting the vaudeville shows and the movies have grown somewhat accustomed to these scenes from the Hearst-Selig and Strand pictorial services.

To sum up: the Belgian Battlefield Pictures are fairly interesting to those who have seen many very like them, and would be interestly interesting to

But, if they had been taken from Zeopelius flying over Antiverse distance.

Zeppelins flying over Antwerp during its bombardment, or over the North Sea while the British and German warships were engaged, their enjoyment would have been infinitely diminished by the fearful and wonderful sounds with which the orchestre tortured the irritated audience last night. plays stand as types of two extremes. The fairy play was all imagery; the melodrama is all realism.

But it is of a realism that does not pall. Many of us have seen Paul Armstrong's thrilling play more than once, yet certainly one of us enjoyed it all over again last night, as it was played by the Grayce Scott Company. And what an ingenious plot it has: A man is released from prison, and, because he will not play the pigeon for a plainclothes man, the sleuth hounds him for years. So carefully, however, has he covered his tracks that, when the detective finally traces him to the place of his employment, he is able to brazen; it was a fore-the-war romance of the South, in which Dustin Farnum is delighting large audiences at the Strand this week, contains a number of scenes of these are of the never-to-be-forgotten variety; namely, the steamboat that, when the detective finally traces him to the place of his employment, he is able to brazen it out successfully. Then, when the way seems smooth, he is confronted with the alternative of revealing his identity in an unmistakable manner, or—leaving a child to die. For, it will be remembered, he is able to work out combinations by "listening" with the tips of his fingers to the tumblers and dogs of locks as they fall or rise under his skilled hands.

One Jack George, a blackface monologist, slouched out on the stage of the Lyric Theatre yesterday afternoon, stole the performance and walked away with it. After which, he prob-ably went out and bought a "couple of his enemies," as had said he was going to do, because the reception he got was enough to warrant some kind of cele-bration. He sang a little bit, bravely assisted by the orchestra, and then he launched into a John Healy monologue that out-Healyed Healy, and sent the audience into spasms. Unfortunately, a considerable part of the big act of the bill, a juggling pantomine, in which the Agoust Family displays a remarkable combination of speed and dexterity, was spoiled by the made haste of the early leavers, who, on Mondays and Thursdays never permit any closing act to end in peace. They save about three minutes, at the outside, and they interfere with the view of four-fifths of the audience, but they've got to be on their way, regardless of the comfort of the comfort of the audience.

The Skaters' Bijouve—whatever that means—open the bill with an exhibition of skating, strictly fancy, which seems to please the house. The costumes are pretty and the man has handsome legs. Armstrong and Manley follow in a very garrulous sketch, called "It Happened This Way," which shows, with much conversational detail, the trimming of a wise guy by a confidence shark.
